MUMMY CASE

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY
CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS

To Students of University School:

We who are jointly occupying this beautiful building for the first time are still realizing day by day that it is the personal relationships of yourselves, your parents, and your teachers that make for a good school and a happy one. It seems certain that the further cementing of the partnership of the home and the school will accelerate the transformation of the struggling school of yesterday into the modernized institution of to-day that will more nearly meet every need of every pupil and help you achieve your true stature in the world of tomorrow. What you, the graduates of this year or the students of next year, do and think and act about your school will determine the worth of University School.

Sincerely,
John D. Mees

In Memory of

WILLIAM McCLOSKEY

High school students are light hearted and happy-go-lucky with the idea that sorrows and tragedies belong to the adults. It was hard to realize that on October 16 a senior classmate suddenly met a tragic death. With a wave of the hand and "I'll be going now," Bill McCloskey crossed an intersection only to be killed almost instantly by a passing motorist. Even now, students passing through the halls on the way to classes imagine they catch a glimpse of Bill's cheerful smile and hear his "Hello, beautiful!" But more than anything else, students of University School remember Bill as a friendly classmate who never harbored prejudice against anyone.

The first activity in which the Dramatics Club participated was an original all school play "Grandpa and the Poetic Antenny" written and produced for American Education Week. The play had a cast of ninety-nine pupils, sixty-five of whom were members of the Dramatics Club. Smaller groups of the club gave four one-act plays for assembly programs. A major activity was an adaptation of Midsummer-Night's Dream, which, in conjunction with the speech class, was presented for the yearly dramatics festivals sponsored by the Illinois State High School Association. The final production of the year was a modern three-act play sponsored by the Junior Class.

Phi Lambda Kappa, foreign language club of University School, began the year with a bus trip to Marion for the District Junior Classical Society Convention on October 14.

A Roman banquet was the highlight of November. Clad in togas, stolas or Spanish costumes, twenty-four members of the club enjoyed a real Roman feast from the egg to the apple. The Spanish class furnished the entertainment, an original play, "In a Mexican Restaurant."

Christmas caroling in foreign languages, pinata parties, and a Roman funeral were other features of the year.

Part of the club publishes ACTA, the official magazine of the Illinois Junior Classical Society. This paper goes to more than seventy-five schools in the state.

The Band, one of the more important activities of the school, lends pep and noise to athletics and useful musical knowledge to those who participate in it. Under Mr. Paterson's leadership the students learn cooperative enterprise through ensemble playing, coordination through the handling of instruments, and responsibility in the care of instruments and music.

The band is growing in number and popularity. This year they played at the football games, entered the District and State Music Contests and gave an assembly program. At various times during the year they gave parties and "coke" jam sessions.

This year they were fitted in new band uniforms so that next year they will look quite smart as they take part in various parades. The band will show much improvement next year when they enter the new building for there the music department is equipped with special practice rooms, and "practice makes perfect" is common knowledge among musicians.

Be Filled With Music"

The University School Glee Club is a select group of vocalists chosen from grades seven through nine on the basis of ability during a tryout.

During the year they sang for various organizations of Carbondale such as the Rotary and Lions Clubs, the School Administrators Conference, the high school Christmas program and an assembly program.

Next year the club will be enlarged and enter the various state music contests. Ensemble and soloist work will also be started.

The aims of the Hi-Tri League are to develop character, friendship, courtesy, pleasure, success, and loyalty.

At Christmas time the girls collected used clothing to be distributed to the needy families of Carbondale. In the spring a tea for their mothers was given and an assembly program was sponsored by the club.

All girls in school from the ninth to twelfth grades are eligible.

The club was first organized this year. After they move into the new building they can offer more service to the school and increase their number of activities.

The purpose of the club is to give the boys an additional hour every other week of recreation and practical experience in various sports, especially basketball. The boys pick up valuable experience not only by playing games but also through seeing motion pictures of the game fundamentals.

The Industrial Arts Club has two main purposes. These purposes are to create student interest in industrial art work and to help members develop some type of hobby.

The boys work during the club period on home appliances such as ash trays, lamps, things which they may want for their rooms at home from wood or metal. Sometimes their aim may be the making of a gift for someone in their family.

For fun during the year, the boys drew plans and constructed model racers. They later held a racing contest in the gym.

Hobbies resulting from this club may lead to profits in the future.

SCIENCE CLUB! That could cover so much. They try to include subjects of interest to Southern Illinois. At each meeting they see movies or hear speakers connected with the various science departments of the University or go on trips to points of interest in and around Carbondale. Near the end of the year the project for entrance in the Illinois Academy of Science is of the most importance. Then, all of the year's activities wind up with a picnic with vows to produce better projects for the next year.

THE MUSEUM CLUB was organized two years ago for students interested in observing and understanding the plant and animal life of Southern Illinois through study in the Museum and in the field.

At each meeting some phase of Southern Illinois flora and fauna or history is studied. Bird study is especially stressed. Hour field trips are held at club meetings and afternoon and Saturday field trips are made for those of the club who are interested. Movies, slides and speakers make up the other programs.

BILL BLOODWORTH

He was the spark of the team and made first team all-conference.

Under the direction of coach John "Bud" Stotlar, the University Lynxes' football team fought their way through the third year of football with high spirits and low scores. The low scores might be attributed to the fact that six seniors were lost from the team last year and another starter was lost at the first of this year's season.

Even with all the handicaps, the team showed remarkable skill and spirit. Instead of always fighting to win, the Lynxes fought to gain the reputation of good sportsmanship and clean football. Any person who saw a game this year will agree that they reached their goal.

Lynxes of the Hardwood

The loss of seven seniors hit the basketball team rather hard this year.

Under the leadership of Coach Bob Johnson, the Lynxes went through a regular schedule of twenty games plus two tournaments playing with courage, skill and teamwork.

Bad breaks, bad ankles and last minute "heartbreakers" haunted the team most of the year, but they ended on a happy note by beating Sesser and Vergennes in the last two games of the season.

CARLTON SISK

He added height, basketball ability, and a witty personality.

EUGENE MANTOVANI

He is mild mannered and quiet, but the score book shows that he did all right on the basketball floor.

GERALD BIGGS

His record shows that he can score on a basketball floor as well as in the classroom.

These 1950-51 cheerleaders were selected by the student body at a pep meeting shortly before the football season began.

It was their job to lead the crowd in yells at all football and basketball games. Although this was not an unpleasant task, it was brightened by the brand new uniforms.

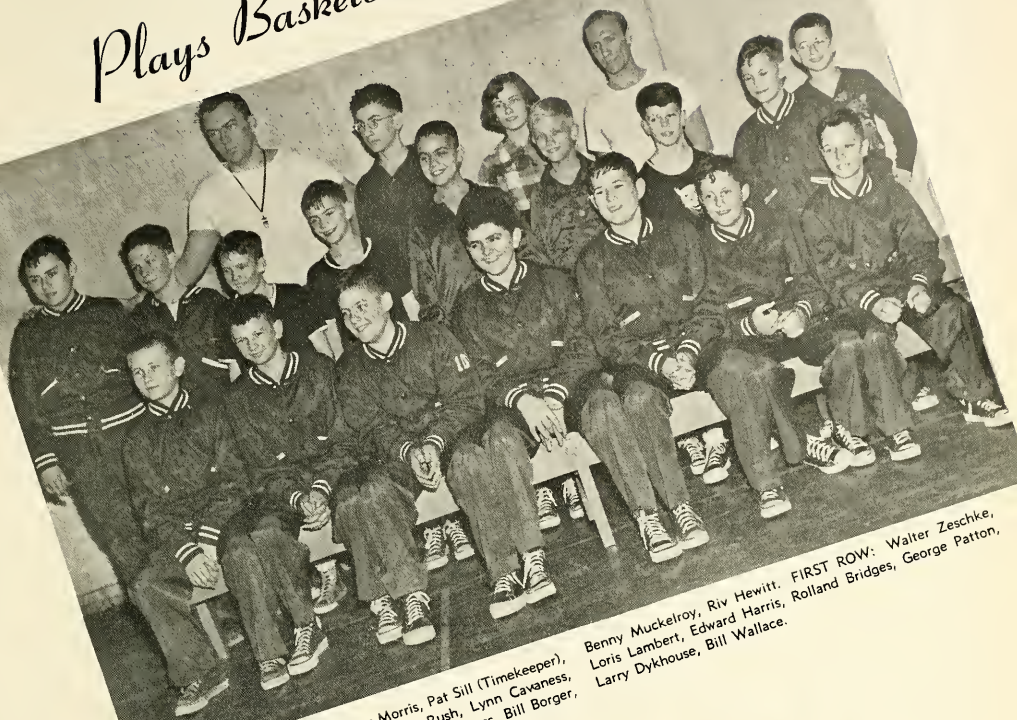

A highlight of the season was the attendance at a cheerleader's clinic at Southern Illinois University where problems and yells were discussed with cheerleaders from all Southern Illinois.
